DYCSBURG.

Kind Editor:—As our little town on the Cumberland has been unrepresented in the columns of your estimable paper for some weeks, we take the liberty of sending a few items.

Dyensburg has awoken to new life and should a stranger pass our way he would find anything but a dead town. The busy whirl of two saw mills, now in daily operation. The whistle of the canning factory, the busy workers within, the sound of the hammer as the carpenters ply their trade, all denote activity, and ere long the town will have risen again, from the ashes of the terrible conflagration that almost destroyed the entire business portion and be a new Dyensburg, and we hope a wiser and better town.

J. C. Griffin has a new business house well under construction.

Bennett & Lowery are again in business with a general line of merchandise and groceries.

A large barge of coal is now at our landing and is being unloaded as fast as possible.

Will Groves has recently purchased the home and farm of Jim Davall adjoining town. Mr. Davall will leave soon for Paducah where he will reside.

James Glass sold his property here to Mr. J. C. Griffin. Mr. Glass, we are glad to say, does not contemplate leaving our midst.

Chas. Padon will soon begin the erection of a residence on his farm near town.

We are informed that Dr. T. L. Phillips, Mr. Frank Dyess and Yancy Bros. are soon to commence the erection of a business block.

Mrs. Virgie Cassidy, of Louisville, is visiting Mrs. S. H. Cassidy, of this place.

Mrs. Nannie Steele, of Princeton, was the guest of Miss Mayme Steele Monday.

Miss Zora Whitson, who has been visiting relatives here for weeks, returned to her home in Logan county Monday.

Miss Percie Bennett and brother, Frank, of Princeton, were the guests of Mrs. T. L. Phillips and Miss Rhea Cooksey last week.

H. J. Wells was in Kuttawa Monday.

Guy Rice, of Fredonia, was in town Monday.

Quite a number of our people attended Missionary Meeting at Caldwell Springs Sunday.

INHERITS FROM LANDLORD.

"Live Glovemaker of Polk Street." Has No Longer to Pay Rent On Home.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 31.—The little glovemaker of Polk street yesterday laid aside her workbasket of unfinished silk mittens for the first work-day in fifteen years. Whether she resumes the uncompleted task or abandons it forever now is optional with her.

Mrs. Anna E. Carroll, the world's model tenant, yesterday received as a regard for faithful service the house in which she has paid rent for twenty-seven years. A three story brick building at 262 West Polk street was bequeathed to her in the will of its owner, Henry L. Barney, who died two weeks ago.

The little gray-haired woman, who in her declining years unexpectedly became a landholder, had not recovered from the surprise yesterday.

"Mr. Barney had spoken of it for years as my house," she said "and he had left it almost entirely in my charge, but I never knew that he intended doing all this." Her eyes shone with pride as she indicated the quaint, old-fashioned but substantial building of which she was the owner.

"They supplied the money for the rent," she said. "Every month for twenty-seven years all but a few weeks, I have paid Mr. Barney his $25 on the first of the month. Why, I won't know what to do now when rent day comes around, and I can put the money in my pocket. At the hospital he told the attendants I was the brightest little woman in Chicago, because I paid him promptly, attended to the repairs of the building myself and looked after interests, because he was an invalid. But I never thought of this—never."

The neighbors who crowded into the plainly furnished room, seemingly more jubilant than Mrs. Carroll.

"And you'll be givin' up the glovemaker now?" queried one.

"Maybe, but I don't think so," was the thoughtful answer. "You know I am used to the work now."

The husband of Mrs. Carroll has been dead for twenty-seven years, and her son left Chicago many years ago. She is alone, save for the friends whose hearty congratulations brought tears to her eyes yesterday.

"There would not be much use being a model tenant if there wasn't a model owner," she said simply.

"The will of Mr. Barney and the many charities he helped showed the kind of man he was."

Tom Hall had the misfortune to stick a pitch fork in his leg last week.

When Mr. Barney left the renting of the house to me, he said, "Choose the right kind of neighbors, and I think I did."

The will of Mr. Barney, which will be probated Sept. 17, disposes of $200,000 worth of property and real estate. All is bequeathed to relatives and charity, save the structure which he turned over to its long time tenant.

Mrs. Carroll is a former resident of Buffalo, where her family once owned much property. She has been a school teacher, but since the loss of all her money fifteen years ago has supported herself by needlework on silk mittens and fancy gloves.

All persons wishing to take school boarders please report immediately to W. B. Vandell or J. P. King.

DANIELS COMET VISIBLE.

Early Risers Will be Repaid by Look Into the East Just Before Dawn.

Many persons who have been early in the morning have observed with much interest the beautiful comet which is seen in the East. The comet was discovered on Jan. 10 by Prof. Zaccarius Daniels, of Princeton University, and has continued almost steadily to increase in brightness and visibility.

The New York Tribune, in a recent issue, has the following to say about the comet:

"The Daniels comet rises in the east at 3 o'clock in the morning, shortly afterward, and it seems to be the best advantage a little before the earliest indications of dawn—say at 4:30. Since it was first discovered it has traveled to the eastward. Several weeks ago it was in the constellation of Taurus. Last week it passed between Procyon (the Dog Star) and the brightest stars, Gemini Castor and Pollux. Just now it is in Cancer, and by Sunday, Sept. 1 it will be near the brightest star (Alpha) in that constellation. The path it is following would, if extended in imagination, run pretty close to Regulus. In the hands of the sickle-like system of stars in Leo, but Leo does not come above the horizon now until about two hours after the comet."

"The comet now visible in the early morning, though not so brilliant as several observed in former times, is said to be the most important object of its class seen in the latitude of this city for a quarter of a century. If comparatively few persons attempted to rise at an inconvenient hour for the purpose of seeing it, there is certainly enough in the spectacle presented to repay a little effort on the part of those who are kept out of bed by business or pleasure until nearly dawn. Indeed, whether the opportunity is improved or not, it deserves to be seen."

Willie—Gee! Do they let you go to swell parties?

Gracie—Lots of 'em. I'm getting a ceter and a ceter every day.

His Horse's Finish.

"Dear me, baby," said an old lady as she alighted from a four wheeler at Liverpool street station, "your horse's knees are bad."

"Don't you go and think it's been 'e's got into a silly 'abit of tryin' to stand on 'is 'ead in the street, ma'am, 'cos it ain't," was the reply. "That there 'oss is a serious thinkin' 'oss, 'e is, ma'am. A weery prayerful animal 'e is too. 'E's been prayin' this last six year as 'ow 'is pore old master'll one of these days come across a kind 'earted party what'll give 'im a copper or two over 'is bare fare, but, Lor! bless yer, ma'am," he added as he looked at the shilling the old lady had handed him, "'e's losin' faith fast, and unless somethin' soon 'appens 'e'll die a bloomin' blindel."—London Tit-Bits.

Why We Get Indigestion. Recently a medical man gave it as his opinion that the oven was responsible for more dyspepsia than any other household contrivance. The modern cook finds it much easier to bake than to roast. The spit does has almost gone out of existence, and there is seldom any one in the kitchen to take its place. It follows very reasonably that any food cooked within a confined space will not be so digestible as that done before an open fire, where all gases have freedom to escape.—Country Life.

A Jolt.

"Did you tell your teacher that I helped you with your French exercise, Sidney?"

"Yes, father."

"And what did he say?"

"He said he wouldn't keep me in to-day, 'cos it didn't seem fair that I should suffer for your ignorance."

How We Do Change!

"Alto!" exclaimed Mr. Jellins. "Been treasuring another man's picture all these years, hey?"

"Not exactly," answered his better half. "That's a photo taken of you, dear, when you had hair."—Washington Herald.
